March 13, 2002 LB 276

body, first of all I want to thank the committee for their work and their counsel. I absolutely endorse their work and appreciate it very much. But there was one technical error that we discovered after we looked at it. They left out a...language on telecommunications, identifying information. So the amendment that is up there addresses that error. And also the financial industry came to me and were concerned about charge card not being used, that is the common jargon in the industry, and so they ask that that be included. So there are two technical changes. They do not change the intent in any way. And I would appreciate your support of both this and the committee amendment. Thank you.

SENATOR COORDSEN: Thank you, Senator Redfield. On the Redfield amendment to the committee amendment, Senator Landis.

SENATOR LANDIS: Mr. Speaker, members of the Legislature, I've talked a lot today. I'll just make one speech and sit down. This...I'm hoping that it was...it's been well drawn because the problem is very real and deserves remedy. Now I'm going to vote with pleasure for the advancement of this bill, because I've known people who have had problems around this, and it is unimaginable, the disconnection that this creates, when you get a credit history that gets mix...mismatched with a person, when you get merchants thinking that they're owed money, when you get a credit card that needs reconciliation, when you have a lawsuit that initiates because somebody thinks that they were...deserve to be paid when the other person doesn't even know they had a bill. That amount of disconnection in one's life...the grief that one goes through is defeating, absolutely defeating. This is different than simply some kind of theft or robbery, or defrauding when the...when you suffer a painful loss of money. This is going to be money, reputation; this is going to be your name; this is going to be the willingness of people you don't know to do business with you; this is going to make you explain over and over and over again, until you're blue in the face, all the way up the hierarchy to the person who will finally change the records. This is far beyond a simple defrauding or a simple theft. It's...it's not just the amount of money that's involved because the hassle in your life is just phenomenal. I intend to adopt and vote for the amendment. I then intend to vote for the
